

2nd BATTALION, EAST SURREY REGIMENT

1941

From the end of November 1941 the Army Form C2118 was no longer used as a War Diary record, and was replaced by the following Main Diary and supplemented by other concurrent diaries kept by 1st Leicesters and British Battalion, and which have been inserted into this transcription.

Main Diary Malayan Campaign - December 1941 to February 1942

December T.J.P. CAMP, ALOR STAR (MALAYA)

Dec 3rd

The battalion stationed in a wooden enhutment camp 10 1/2 miles outside Alor Star, Kedah, since February 21, 1941. Practised a new movement; the whole battalion was "Mecholised". e.g. two Companies and part of Battalion Headquarters were mechanised into 15 cwt trucks - the remaining two Companies ("A" and "C" Companies) - and part of Battalion Headquarters were carried in 16 3-ton lorries (with stores).

Dec 7th

1600: The alarm was sounded. Company Commanders reported to the Commanding Officer, who issued his orders which had been written and carefully prepared for weeks. The contents of these orders were:-

The Battalion was part of a force (The 6th Indian infantry Brigade) which was to advance into Thailand on orders. Remains of Battalion H.Q. (Major F.B.B. Dowling M.C.) covered by Carriers, who were to remain with the Battery.

Meanwhile, 2/16 Punjab Regiment were to proceed by armoured train to Hadyai, and release the 1/8 Regiment, who were then to follow up the 2/Surreys. The object was to hold Singora.

2000: With these objects in heart, the Company Commanders left the Commanding Officer, and saw the Companies loading their vehicles, and all awaited for the final word to move.

Dec 8th 0600: The Commanding Officer sent for Company Commanders, and informed them that the Japanese had attacked Kota Bharu, and fighting was in progress, but we were still "standing by".
0700: Aircraft was heard overhead but the unit remained in camp.
1140 (approx): Aircraft was again heard, and terrific reports acted in the direction of the Alor Star Aerodrome. (it was later confirmed that the Aerodrome has been badly damaged).
1500: Orders were received to occupy our defence positions on the Jitra Line.
Here again I will point out the disposition of Companies. "C" Company was on the right of the battalion front and inter-Brigade boundary, the 1st Battalion The Leicestershire Regiment being on their right and forward of "C" Companies position was known as the 11 1/2 milestone. To the left 1 1/2 miles (to the West) Battalion Headquarters and then 1/2 West of them at Budi was "B" Company. Then forward of "B" Company, along a canal about 3/4 mile was Pisang Wood where "A" and "D" Companies were in position. The left of the battalion were back to marshes and a railway which was protected and patrolled by 2/16 Punjabs. Throughout the night of 8th/9th stores and the guns were brought into position. It had rained and the ground was very muddy and heavy.

They also reported that the 1/8th Punjab and The Mountain Battery, which had formed a party into Thailand, had arrived in front of Pisang Wood and that the bridge in front of them towards Jitra has been blown. ALOR STAR (One mile beyond Gurun)

Move 2

Dec 13th 0500: "A" Company and part of "C" Company arrived at Anak Bukit, very exhausted, to be sent at 0600 hours to Simpang Ampat, and await instructions. Meanwhile the 28th Brigade and the 15th Brigade were to be withdrawn to a new line. The 1/8th and 2/16th Punjab Regiments were ordered to Alor Star, while "B" and "D" Companies East Surreys covered the withdrawal.
 0900: O.C. "A" and "C" Companies, East Surreys received instructions to return to Alor Star and take up a defensive position on the south of the river (West of main road).
 NOTE The road was now almost packed with troops and vehicles moving down the road, with apparently no control.
 0930: "A" and "B" Companies and Battalion Headquarters are over the main bridge in Alor Star. News had now been received that Nos 13 and 14 Platoons of "C" Company with attachment under Lt. Sear were at the Civil Hospital. Lt. Bradley (Carrier Officer) with eight carriers drove back and assisted these men back on carriers. During this time three enemy motorcyclists got through and quickly drove over the main bridge. Fearing further enemy penetration, an order was given by Maj. Gen. Murray-Lyon to blow the bridge.

 2/Lt J.D.
 Carter 9 Pl.
 report

Dec 13th Lt. Bradley was now on the wrong side of Alor Star bridge with some 50 men and 8 carriers. Quickly the carriers were disarmed, and attempts were made to put the carriers into the river, as suddenly the town became a battlefield. As most of the men had piled their arms and were on the opposite side, Lt. Sear, with Lts. Bradley and Cross, seized 3 L.M.G. which were at hand, and engaged the enemy who were firing from houses, while the men got into boats and crossed the river. During this small operation Lt. Sear was mortally wounded but, by his fine courage and determination, he had enabled the remainder, some 60 men, to get back to safety. Throughout this day the Battalion held Alor Star. All the troops were tired.

Dec 13th 1700: "C" Company was ordered to move To the 2nd milestone South of Alor Star, and to take up a defensive position on the right of the road (East) while Major Harvey (Leicesters) took a small detachment of Leicesters (all that was known to be left), on the left or West side. They were to cover the Battalion from Alor Star, each Company reporting to O.C. "C" Company. The withdrawal commenced at 18:00 hours to 19 milestone. Again down this road came troops of all units, some not knowing what was happening or where they were going. It was a pitiful sight. Finally at 2000 hours all Companies had reported through except "A" and "B" headquarters, but their Companies had passed through. O.C. Rearguard waited until 2030 hours and then withdrew with the 2/9th Gurkha's carriers covering them to Simpang Empat. where are they embussed and joined the Battalion at 19 milestone about 0300 hours.

0400: Headquarters of "A" and "B" Companies arrived at the 19th milestone, having lost their way out of Alor Star, and gone towards Kuala Kedah.

1530: "B" Echelon arrived with hot food. First hot meal for two days.

"B" on the right of the road. "A" & "C" Companies in reserve. "C" Company watching the right flank and railway. Battalion Headquarters was established. Capt. Hill 2 i/c Battalion. Capt. Vickers O.C. 1600: Enemy tanks appeared on the Gurun-Champedak crossroads (3 tanks and 10 or 12 trucks with troops). These were engaged by our anti-tank guns.

1700: 3rd Cavalry put in a counter-attack which was a failure.

1800 approx: Brig. Lay (6th Indian infantry Brigade Cmdr.) ordered "A" Company Surreys and all troops are available (Battalion H.Q.) to counter-attack and regain the crossroads. This also failed. The troops were ordered to remain on the ground. Lt. J. Quarrell, who seeing an enemy tank, stalked it and was in the act of throwing a grenade into the open turret when he was seen and the enemy opened fire on him with their A/Tank gun, severely wounding him in the arm. He was rescued by R.S.M. Worsfold.

During this counter-attack two deeds should be recorded. 1) Sjt. Harrison of the Carriers showed great bravery and fine example by encouraging all he saw to move forward, he himself completely disregarding any danger (now a prisoner-of-war at Kuala Lumpur). 2) Action of Lt. Quarrell quoted above.

Lt. Wilkinson (M.C.O. 6th Brigade) and R.S.M. Worsfold with C.S.M. Foley and some 10 men remained forward as a standing patrol.

2000: Lt. Wilkinson, hearing movement on the road, challenged, to be met by a volley of fire. He was wounded in the shoulder and later arrived very exhausted at "C" Company H.Q. at 08:00 hours 15-12-41.

2100: Heavy firing took place on both sides of the main road.

2130: The ration party with "D" Company found that they could not return on the road to Gurun, so they had to make a detour through the woods.

2359: Major Dowling held a conference which all Company Commanders attended except O.C. "C" Company and there informed all that a counter-attack was taking place at 0400 hours by "D" Company

Moves 5 & 6

Dec 15th

0300: Enemy pressure became more severe on the main road. Fight was then with forward troops, enemy breaking through 1/8 Punjabs. "A" Company (what was left) was put in as a stop-gap. It was then that Capt. J.A. Kerrich was killed by a sniper.

0400: Major Dowling went to Brigade to inform them what was happening. In the meantime the enemy had broken through the 1/8th Punjabs and were moving down the main road. No communication existed between the Bn. H.Q. and any Company at this time. Lt. A.E. Howard, the adjutant, went in the meantime to O.C. "D" Company to give orders to counter-attack, at 0430 hours, the crossroads. This was never carried out as the Artillery Barrage was over before the Company could move, and also the enemy counter-offensive altered things.

0700: Meanwhile "D" Company, under Major Andrews (1/8th) were ordered to withdraw round Kedah Peak (Mount Jerai) and make for the coast (West). This withdrawal of 1/8th Punjabs and "D" company opened up the main road, thus enabling the Japanese to surprise Battalion H.Q. and later Brigade H.Q. Also at the same time "B" Company on the left of the road were left completely alone until now, when they were attacked but held their ground, until they found the enemy behind them and withdrew Eastwards to 1st/2nd Gurkhas across the railway about 1210 hours. "C" Company meanwhile, with the 2/16th Regiment at the Railway Station, had no attack at all beyond small patrols. Lieutenant-Colonel Larkin and Capt. Wallis at 1030 hours decided to recce. the position out on the right and South as they had no orders, and the firing was nearly all behind them. 1200: After a reconnaissance Lt. Col. Selby, 1/2 Gurkhas, was contacted, and he ordered 2/16 Punjabs and "C" Company to move down to him 1/2 mile from Gurun railway crossing, and East of it. "C" Company never found 1/2nd Gurkhas, so marched through the rubber estates on the East of the road and railway to Bedong. This force consisted of 94 "C" company men and 23 "B" Company men under Lt Bruckmann.

1600: At Bedong the force then marched along the railway to Sungei Patani, sending Lt.Bruckmann with two men on cycles on the main road. All communications with our own troops had disappeared, and where our new line was no-one knew.. At Bedong the 3/9th Gurkhas were met, who were resting, having been on the march for days. The distance covered by this force was approximately 23 miles.

2200: At Sungei Patani the force arrived and was taken by lorries to Bukit Mertajam to find the Battalion "B" echelon, which it was unable to do.

0300: At Sungei saw Maj-Gen Murray-Lyon for the last time. He was replaced.

0930: "C" Company moved by train to Bukit Parritt and later on by train to Taiping arriving at 14:00 hours. In the meantime (on December 15th) Capt Vickers with two platoons of "B" Company withdrew to 1/2 Gurkhas behind Gurun (East). At 18:00 hours he withdrew under Lieutenant-Colonel Selby, marching all night to Sungei Patani, where again he was brought by lorry to Bukit Patani and located "B" Echelon.

1700: Captain Gingell (Q.M.), Captain Vickers, Lts. Bruckmann, Abbott, Barnard, and Carter, and some 150 men with the Battalion M.T. joined forces with Captain Wallis at Taiping, making a total of 260 odd at St. George's School, Taiping.

Thus, 8 days after the commencement of the war the Battalion had used up practically all its first-line reinforcements and had, for the moment, 10 Officers and 260 men, out of a total of 31 Officers and 760 (approx.) men who had gone to war.

Dec 19th Battalion arrived just after midnight 18/19 December and moved into St Michael's School where 1st Leicestershires arrived about one hour later. The day was spent in resting. Orders were received that the two Battalions were to combine and Lieutenant-Colonel C.E. Morrison M.C. was appointed to command the combined Battalion, which was to be known as "The British Battalion" .

It was decided to have two Leicester and two East Surrey Companies and that H.Q. Coy. and Battalion H.Q. should be half and half. Small parties of Officers and men from various M.R.Cs. and hospitals arrived during the day.

Dec 20th The next three days were spent in rest, re-organisation and re-equipping the Battalion. During this time, Officers and men continued to rejoin from M. R. C. and hospitals, most of whom had left Kedah in native craft after the debacle at Jitra and Gurun. Much attention was given to the men's feet and the Battalion grew gradually into a fit fighting unit.

Eventually the combined Battalion was up to W.E. (790 approximately) and was able to send 120 men to 7 M.R.C. These were mostly men suffering from bad feet.

When all stragglers had arrived, the combined battalion was organised as follows:

Dec. 22nd

During the 20th and 21st the Battalion was treated to a sight of our aircraft for about the only time during the campaign until the arrival at Singapore. These however, were evacuating Ipoh on the 21st, and the Battalion, in the conspicuous red brick school near the railway, was lucky not to be bombed during one of the many visits of enemy aircraft.

The British Battalion was in the combined 6/15 Bde under Brig .Garrett and the same Brigade Staff. The 2/9th Jats,, who were combined with 1/8 Punjabs and the 1/14 Punjabs, formed the other two Battalions of the Brigade.

Orders received for Battalion to move to Kampar the next day. C.O. and Company Commanders to go there for a reconnaissance. Maj. Gen. Sir Lewis Heath, G.O.C. visited Battalion and addressed all Officers and N.C.Os.

Weapons:

As ordnance had not enough Bren guns to make up deficiencies, the Battalion was issued with Lewis and Vickers Machine guns instead, but even then there were not enough for one per section. There were no 2 inch mortars for issue, and the Battalion only had one or two per Company.

There were similarly only four 3 inch mortars. The carrier platoon was brought up to 10 carriers.

Most men were made up with clothing and boots, but all were not complete with equipment.

KAMPAR

Move 9

Dec. 23rd

C.O, Company Commanders and Platoon Commanders left by road early for final reconnaissance. Major Wallis brought the Battalion by rail later in the day.

The Battalion moved into their Company areas at Kampar and Battalion Headquarters was temporarily established in a house on the East of main road.

The Battalion was not then in the front line as the 28th Brigade was in position at Dipang at the road junction to the North, but their role, when pressed, was to fall back Eastwards and then South, down the road that ran parallel to the Kampar Road and some two miles over the mountains to the East of it.

Dec. 24th

From 24th to 30th the Battalion worked hard digging, clearing and wiring. Enemy planes were over most days, flying low and well able to pick out all section posts. For the first two days, the Perak Volunteers helped in the work, but they were then moved South, leaving behind attached to us, however, one M.G. Platoon (Lt Greatham) and one Infantry Platoon (Lt. Mackey) - all British. Lieutenant Carson, also of the Perak Volunteers, was attached to us as interpreter and did excellent work throughout the rest of the campaign on special reconnaissances.

Hired Chinese labour from the local tin mines was also at first plentiful, but after some bombing and machine-gunning from the air, they all vanished into the hills to the East. Battalion Headquarters moved from a house to a rubber plantation West of the road where it was more central and less of an aiming mark.

Dec. 24th - 30th

During this period, also, numerous reconnaissances were carried out in the hills to the East to find the most likely approaches on that flank. Lieutenant Carson and L/Cpl Cooks (E. Surreys) did most of these.

The hills, though steep and covered with thick jungle, had many paths in them through which the enemy could be guided, and there was always a danger of enemy filtration on this flank. One safeguard, however, were the numerous Chinese refugee encampments, through which Lt. Carson hoped to get early news of any enemy movements.

In spite of various orders and warnings, the whole area was full of Chinese from the mines, and later, when the enemy got nearer, it was impossible for O.Ps. to distinguish one from the other, especially as the Japs had frequently been known to dress up as Chinese.

Dec. 25th

Short service conducted by Rev J Short on one of his flying visits to the Battalion. Free issue of beer obtained by Q.M. and also turkey and local livestock made a good Christmas dinner.
